The Russian River Valley needs no introduction. This historic winegrowing region's warm daytime temperatures give way to cool evening fogs from the river and nearby Pacific, providing an ideal, long growing season for its world-class wines. The dry 2020 vintage produced smaller grapes with unparalleled flavors.

Partially fermented with native yeasts, this textured Chardonnay is a nuanced example of one of the region's signature varietals. Aromas of crème brulee and citrus peel abound. On the palate the wine deftly combines fresh acidity and subtle creaminess with interwoven flavors of peach and nectarine, complemented by notes of nutmeg. The finish is clean and mineral, yet rich, with lasting impressions of lemon meringue, brioche and marzipan.

While the Willowbrook 2020 Russian River Valley Chardonnay is a great stand-alone wine, it pairs naturally with white fish in a buttery sauce or late summer harvest vegetables.
